EXPLANATORY NOTE

*This Explanatory Note was written as a reader's aid to Bill 67 and does not form part of the law.
Bill 67 has been enacted as Chapter 18 of the Statutes of Ontario, 2018.*

The Bill amends the Labour Relations Act, 1995 to address the current labour dispute between Ontario Power Generation Inc. and the Power Workers' Union. It prohibits any strike or lock-out from occurring, requires the termination of any strike or lock-out that is underway and provides a mechanism for achieving a new collective agreement.

An Act to amend the Labour Relations Act, 1995

Preamble

The last collective agreement between Ontario Power Generation Inc. and the Power Workers' Union expired on March 31, 2018. The parties have been engaged in the collective bargaining process for many months, including conciliation with the assistance of the Ministry of Labour, but have been unable to resolve their dispute. On December 13, 2018, the Power Workers' Union's membership did not ratify Ontario Power Generation Inc.'s final offer. The parties appear deadlocked and on December 14, 2018, the Power Workers' Union gave notice of a strike.

The workers in Ontario's electricity generating stations are professional, skilled individuals responsible for the safe and secure ongoing operation and maintenance of complex, vital facilities.

Through these facilities, Ontario Power Generation Inc. produces approximately 50 per cent of Ontario's electricity that families, businesses and industry rely on every day. The Independent Electricity System Operator has advised that any prolonged outage caused by a labour disruption would jeopardize the electricity supply to Ontario's homes, industry and businesses, which could impair public safety and well-being and have a devastating impact and ripple effect on the province's economy.

Ontario cannot allow families and seniors to have to live in the dark or to go without heat, especially during winter months. This serious situation requires swift and decisive action. Protecting the public interest and the health and safety of the people of Ontario requires the continuation of operations at Ontario Power Generation Inc. and the resolution of the labour dispute through a fair process of dispute resolution.

Therefore, Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, enacts as follows:

1 Section 169 of the Labour Relations Act, 1995 is repealed and the following substituted:
